EMBALMING THE BONUS BILL.

One of the best evidences that this Congress does not intend to revive and pass the Soldiers' Bonus Bill is the fact that it rejected an amendment setting a date when the bill should be reported back.

How effectively the bill was disposed of, so far as this Congress is concerned, was humorously stated by Senator Reed (Dem., Mo.), when he declared that "in sending it back in that way it will be as effectively killed and as thoroughly dead as Julius Caesar," and then said:

"If there is a spark of life left in it, when the veins are filled with the Penrose embalming fluid the Angel Gabriel could not resurrect it. It will be in as bad a condition as the corpse of the mother-in-law was after it had been treated in accordance with the request of the son-in-law in the very ancient story—which is the only kind I know—when he replied to a telegram 'Mother is dead. Shall I cremate, embalm or bury?' And he replied, 'Do all three. Take no chances.'"

ATTENTION! BASEBALL FANS

And all others interested in the sport. Come out to the meeting Monday evening, August First, at 8 o'clock in the basement of the bank. Anyone having a bill against the Baseball Association present the same to John R. Dull or Charles Allen before the time of meeting.

SENATE LEADER WOULD FINANCE CROPS

The Norris bill providing for a $100,000,000 corporation financed by the government to dispose of surplus agricultural crops, received an impetus when Senator Underwood, Democratic leader of the Senate, spoke in its favor. Senator Underwood has the confidence of the business and agricultural interests and his words necessarily carry weight aside from his party leadership in the highest legislative body. Giving his reasons for supporting the bill, he said:

"Now I wish to say a few words concerning my reasons for supporting the agricultural bill. It may be going a long way to lend Federal money to a corporation, but we have loaned a billion dollars or more to the shipping corporation; we have loaned a large amount of money to corporations organized to take care of railroad credits; and this is a bill to organize a $100,000,000 corporation, with a loaning capacity to issue bonds of $100,000,000, to aid in the financing of the crops of the country.

"As I said the other day, I am not so optimistic as to claim that this bill is going to be effective to any great extent in connection with financing the crop this fall, it will take time to get it into operation, and I am not going to hold out to those I represent that I am going to do something for them at this time that probably will not be accomplished. If I did it would only create a disappointment and probably affect the usefulness of the bill in the future; but I think the great difficulty with agriculture is the establishment of its markets, co-ordination of effort in trying to reach the markets, marketing the crop, and I think this bill will be helpful along that line. I am willing to give it a trial, and I should like to see the effort made now.

"A great many wild pieces of legislation, that I do not think can be effective, are offered to relieve the present situation, and I am now willing to vote for them. The administration of this bill will be under Government control. I take it that the Government is not going to waste any money, and that the President of the United States will appoint capable and efficient men that at least will take care of the Government's money and not have it wasted; so I do not think we are endangering the Government finances to any extent. The bill may be helpful, and an effort to inject another bill in its way right now—I care not how important the other bill is—may mean the ultimate defeat of this bill.

"I shall, therefore, vote for the consideration of the bill proposed by the Senator from Nebraska and hope that it may be kept before the Senate until it is finally disposed of, and I do not think that will take many days."

"HONUS" WAGNER'S TEAM TO PLAY LOCALS.

"Honus" Wagner, the greatest short stop the game has ever known, took dinner in Bedford last Wednesday and while here had a short talk with John R. Dull and H. J. Pleacher regarding a game between the locals and his team, which is one of the fastest teams in Pittsburgh. "Honus" played first base on his team and promised Mr. Dull to set a date for Bedford as soon as he got back to Pittsburgh.

The local management has been in touch with Wagner's team for some time trying to arrange a game here, and everyone is looking forward to see old "Honus" in action.

HEART OF THE AGRICULTURAL PROBLEM

Concerning the present agricultural situation and the needs of relief of the farmer, Senator Simmons (Dem., N. C.), in a recent speech went to the very heart of the subject—marketing the surplus crops—in support of the Norris bill, when he said:

"How is the farmer to get—what reason has he to expect that he is going to get any more for his wheat and his cotton and his tobacco and his wool this year than he did last year, unless we provide some way by which the accumulated surplus of those products may be sold in the only market that is open to him—the foreign market? Carry the present agricultural surplus to the time of the marketing of the present crop, and is there a man of common sense in this body who does not know that the next crop will bring no more than those products have commanded in the markets of the world during the past 12 months? There can be no relief from the present low and distressing and ruinous prices of agricultural products until the accumulated surplus is disposed of. Taking that surplus and adding to it the surplus of next year—and most of the next crop will be surplus—if the present surplus be not absorbed, can be mind picture the distressing, the overwhelming, the ruinous condition of agriculture that will prevail in this country?"

Mr. President, I maintain that the only hope of the farmer to get anything for this year's crop is that we provide in anticipation of its marketing some means to dispose of the surplus now on hand.

"But, Mr. President, if the bill of the Senator from Nebraska is not going to do any good, I wish to ask, has the Republican majority in this body no measure which it can propose to the Senate and to the country for the relief for this sorely stricken part of our population, constituting 43 per cent of it, now upon the very brink of ruin, pressed to the wall by their creditors, their lands in jeopardy, the sheriff ready to take possession unless relief is speedy? Has the Republican majority nothing further to offer if these measures do not avail to help? If this measure and the other measures pending in the Senate at this time for the benefit of the farmer amount to nothing for his relief, I call upon the majority to tell me if they are unable to work out anything, the responsibility is on them for a measure which will be of relief to the farmer—or is it that the Senators on the other side who know realize that any measure that would be adequate to relieve the farmer in this distressing situation could not get the sanction of a majority of the Members of the Senate on the other side of the chamber who are supposed to be much more concerned about some other and possibly conflicting interests than they are about the farmer. Do you wish to confess your imbecility and incapacity?"

PULLS UP BURIED GOLD

Pottsville, Pa., July 24.—Prof. J. S. Gottlieb, choirmaster at St. John the Baptist Church, saw a rope sticking up from the ground in his yard. Pulling on it, he drew out of the earth a bag containing $300 in gold. A wealthy family formerly occupied the home where the professor lives, at 1009 Howard avenue, and it is believed the money was buried treasure. For years it reposed nearly on the surface of the ground, ready for anyone to pick up.

CHANDLER BROS. AND CO. FAIL

The Chandler Bros., and Co., of Philadelphia failed last Monday. The company had offices in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Reading and New Haven, Conn. It is reported that the crowds clamoring at the office doors in Philadelphia on Monday and Tuesday were immense. As fast as the police would disperse one another would form.

There is a great deal of cheer in the reflection that since hard times have hit the Harding administration, when prosperity comes it will be sweet.

175,000 POUNDS MILK LOST IN THE COUNTY

In conducting a "Clean Milk Campaign" in Bedford County during August 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th the Farm Bureau has in mind three important features. Better prices, less waste and better health.

Better prices may be obtained for a better quality product in that the city consumer will use more milk when she feels reasonably sure of its cleanliness. One battle of questionable milk has considerable power in reducing the amount bought by the family to whom it is delivered.

The waste occurring from wrong methods in milking and handling milk reaches surprising proportions. There are four large receiving stations handling Bedford County milk and accurate data from one of these plants shows over 14,000 lbs. of milk to have been bad during the month of May alone and the amount for the last six months totals 45,330 lbs. Accurate data from all four plants would no doubt show that during the last six months approximately 175,000 lbs. of Bedford County milk brought little or no income to the dairymen producing it.

The third feature of the "Clean Milk Campaign" has to do with the health and growth of children and the health of adults. Discoveries recently made in regard to milk in the diet of children and adults will be revealed particularly for the mothers in attendance at the meetings.

The Everett meeting on the evening of August 2nd will have an additional attraction in the way of special films. The Charlesville, New Enterprise and Osterburg meetings will be held on the evenings of August 3rd, 4th and 5th respectively.

A representative of the Philadelphia Inter-State Dairy Council and a lady from the Home Economics Department of the Pennsylvania State College will be the only speakers.

POTATO SPECIALIST VISITS THE COUNTY.

In company with the local County Agent, L. R. Smith spent Friday of last week in inspecting several potato patches where the Farm Bureau has introduced disease-free seed of the Russet variety. Stops were made on the farms of W. D. Koontz, C. E. Koontz and Reuben Diehl in Friend's Cove and at the two spraying demonstrations in Morrisons Cove and Imber.

Actual counts for "leaf roll" and "wilt," two seed born diseases, showed the Russets to average 5% and 4% respectively. This is not considered a high disease percentage. Local home grown seed growing beside the Russets varied greatly in percentage of diseased stalk showing as high as 25% "leaf roll" and 50% "wilt."

In practically all cases the disease free seed showed greater vitality in that there was less "tipburn" present.

County Agent, L. R. Mollenauer is planning to hold "rogueing" demonstrations in the near future at central locations where interest in better seed potatoes is manifest.

CANDIDATES TO DRAW FOR BALLOT PLACES

Under the provisions of an amendment to the Pennsylvania primary law, passed at the last session of the legislature, candidates for county office will this year cast lots to determine whose name shall come first on the ballot. Heretofore the names went on the ballot alphabetically.

After all petitions are filed, the county commissioners will notify all candidates to appear at their office, in person or by representative, and cast lots. The first name drawn will get top position, and so on down the list until the last name is pulled. The commissioners will act for any who fail to appear.

Much dissatisfaction arose from the old method because of trickery that was resorted to. When former Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh ran for delegate to the national convention a name similar to his was placed on the ballot for the purpose of embarrassing the voters and the same thing occurred when James F. Woodward of McKeesport was a candidate for secretary of internal affairs. Mr. Woodward went into court with the matter and the other Woodward's petition was thrown out.

DOUBLE DODGING ON SOLDIERS' BILL.

Some of the interesting circumstances concerning the defeat of the Soldiers' Bonus Bill are as follows:

The Secretary of the Treasury in a letter informed the Senate that the additional drain on the Treasury the bill would impose might cause a financial breakdown and bring disaster to the country.

Some Senators faced with Republican pledges of economy and evidently lacking the courage to vote against the bill are reported to have asked President Harding to come to the Senate and to relieve them of that responsibility.

The President was in an equally embarrassing position, knowing, as well as any one could know, that without his personal opposition the bill would pass and he would be faced with the responsibility of vetoing it, and also knowing that he could shirk this constitutional responsibility by appearing personally in the Senate in opposition to the bill he could induce that body to recommit it to Senator Penrose's committee.

THE PEOPLE PAY ALL THE TAXES

The New York Herald has the following to say about taxes:

Do not let anybody fool you about who pays the taxes. You do.

When you buy a railroad ticket you know very well you are paying taxes into the national Treasury because they are collected from you at that very ticket window. You know you are paying such taxes right then and there and how they hurt. But you are paying, through the railroad, a great deal more of national taxes than that—paying it every day and at every meal.

The Government collects hundreds of millions of taxes from the railroads besides the taxes you pay at the ticket window, and the railroads put it all into the freight bills handed to the shipper. But the shipper does not pay the freight bills. He puts them all into the bills for the goods sent to the dealer to whom they are shipped. But the dealer that receives the goods does not pay them. The shipper has put all his bill into his price to the dealer that receives the goods. The dealer puts them into the prices that the ultimate consumers—you—pay for the goods.

It is so about all the taxes collected from industry and business—they go into the price of the goods or the service to the public. You pay them in rent, food and clothing—everything—just as surely as you pay the taxes the railroad collects from you at the ticket window.

Anybody that tells you he has a tax scheme that will raise billions of revenue for the national Treasury without taking it out of the whole American public—out of you—is telling you what is not so. There is no place to get the several billions of taxes the Government is spending except out of the whole American public—out of you.

The public pays the stupendous taxes—you pay them; and it is a good deal better for you to know what you are paying and how you are paying it than for you to be fooled about it either by the legislature that frames the measure that taxes you or by the man that collects the tax from you in the price of his goods but wants you to believe he pays it.

It is better for you because the Government spender will be more careful how he wades through your taxes when he knows that you know they come out of your pocket.

It is better for you, because the man that sticks the tax he pays into the price you pay him cannot also stick it in two or three times over when you know exactly what the tax is.

A sales tax is the best tax for the Government to get the money it needs. It is the cheapest tax for you to pay, standing right out where it is seen and not trebled on you and hidden away inside the package without realizing it. But, sales tax or no sales tax, you will be taxed.

Do not believe anybody who says he has substituted or the sales taxes is going to raise the billions of taxes but let you off from paying your share. It cannot be done. When he tells you that it can he knows that it cannot.

Yes, and the New York Herald wants you at the same time to think that when a tariff is collected that you don't pay for the tariff but you do. They want about taxes and then put an excessive tariff on goods and you think you aren't stung, but you are just the same. The tariff is a tax camouflaged. It's a hidden tax so deep you can't see it but you pay it just the same.

3 1-3-CENT CANTALOUPE

SELL AT 40 IN RESTAURANT

Profit Is Shown By North Carolina Grower in Baltimore on Visit.

Baltimore, Md., July 27.—The tale of the cantaloupe which, when delivered in the Baltimore market costs three and one-third cents and when served on the restaurant table costs 40 cents was revealed last night by W. I. Johnson, a cantaloupe grower of Gibson, N. C., at present visiting Baltimore.

Mr. Johnson said that farmers were receiving $1 a crate for the best grade through the Scotland County Cantaloupe Co-operative Exchange. Out of this their costs for crates, packing and sale amounts to 22 cents, leaving them 77 cents to pay off the expense of farming. Freight charges to Baltimore are 50 cents a crate, bringing the price per crate delivered in this market to $1.50.

As there are 45 cantaloupes in a standard crate, they cost, delivered, 3 1-3 cents each. They are selling in the retail stores, however, at from 15 to 20 cents each. But Mr. Johnson exhibited the menu of a restaurant upon which the price of a half cantaloupe was shown at 26 cents.

Mr. Johnson said that cantaloupes could be shipped directly by express at a cost, delivered, of 22 2/3 a crate $1 for the cantaloupes and $1.23 for express. This would make them cost delivered about 5 1/2 cents each. The larger cantaloupes look for 27 to 36 in a crate, making them cost in single crate lots, delivered, from 8 to 6 cents each.

LESSON FOR JULY 31
 SAUL TEACHING AT ANTIOCH.
 LESSON TEXT—Acts 11:19-30.
 GOLDEN TEXT—A whole year they assembled themselves with the church, and taught much people.—Acts 11:26.
 REFERENCE MATERIAL—Acts 5:42;
 1 Tim. 2:8-7; 11 Tim. 2:2.
 PRIMARY TOPIC—Carrying Help to Jerusalem.
 JUNIOR TOPIC—Saul Helping Others
 in the Christian Life.
 INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
 —Entering Upon a New Career.
 YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
 —A Year's Teaching in Antioch.

When God was about to launch the missionary enterprise among the Gentiles, He arranged for a new religious center. Antioch was admirably adapted for such a center. The upper classes were Greeks and used the Greek language. The government officials were Romans and used the Latin tongue. While the masses were Syrians, sprinkled among them were Jews who had come for commercial purposes; also travellers from all parts of the world were in evidence.

I. A Religious Awakening at Antioch
 (vv. 19-21).

1. The occasion (v. 19a). The persecution at Jerusalem scattered the disciples abroad. This God permitted in order to separate them from the home people at Jerusalem.

2. The preachers (v. 19a). They were ordinary men and women, not officials, but they were filled with the yearning desire for lost souls and witnessed of the Lord Jesus in the power of the Holy Ghost.

3. What they preached (vv. 19b, 20). They preached the "Word" and the "Lord Jesus." All who preach the Word will preach the Lord Jesus; for He is its center. The real reason why there are no conversions today is the failure of ministers to preach the Word.

II. Barnabas Sent to Inspect the Work at Antioch (vv. 22-24).

This was a wise selection.

1. The character of Barnabas (v.
 24). He was a good man. It is highly important in sending a man to follow up a work of the Spirit that his character be good. He not only must be of an unblemished character, but his sympathies must be broad. He must be capable of entering into full appreciation of the things about him.
 Much mischief often results from sending injudicious men to look after the Lord's work. He was full of the Holy Spirit. This is an essential qualification for pastoral work. Only a Spirit-filled man can appreciate the workings of the Spirit of God. He was also a man of great faith.

2. Work done by Barnabas (v. 23).
 He gladly endorsed the work and earnestly exhorted them to steadfastly continue in the faith, clinging unto the Lord. There are many allurements to tempt young Christians. The rejoicing of Barnabas shows that he was a man who could rejoice in the work of others. He did more than inspect the work; for many people were added unto the Lord. Doubtless he preached.

III. Barnabas Brings Saul (vv. 25, 26).

The work grew to such an extent that help was needed. Barnabas had the good judgment to seek Saul for this important work. Barnabas knew that the bringing of Saul would mean his taking a secondary place. It is the duty of Christian leaders to seek out men who are qualified for the Lord's work and bring them from their places of obscurity, setting them to work in the Lord's vineyard. There are many men in obscurity which it requires a Barnabas to bring forth.

IV. The Disciples First Called Christians (v. 26b).

They were not called Christians in derision, as is so often asserted. It was a consequence of Saul and Barnabas teaching there for a year that they were called Christians. The name was a consequence of the teaching. In all Saul's teaching he showed the unique relation which the Christian sustains to Christ. Since the body closely resembles its head, Christ, they were called Christians.

V. The Church at Antioch Sends Relief to Jerusalem (vv. 27-30).

The Holy Spirit through Agabus made known a great dearth throughout the world. This came to pass in the days of Claudius Cesar. Every man according to his ability determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea. They made up money for the poor saints at Jerusalem and sent it by the hands of Barnabas and Saul. This act not only proved the genuineness of the work at Antioch, but it emphasized the fact that there is no division between Jew and Gentile.

Christ's Blessing.

From Heaven Christ sends down a blessing. He communicates His nature to us, and so we learn how we are to live, and how we are to let Him live in us; and we see somewhat of what we might be if we had faith, and hope, and love, to bear the weight of the glory.—H. Monsell.

Where Love Reigns.

"The best way to cultivate love in your heart is to enthroned Jesus there —for He is love, and, where He is, love reigns."

 Much Attention.

The purpose of trap-nesting the flock is to ascertain which hens lay, either for determining what record they make, or for identifying their eggs during the hatching season so that pedigree records are possible. Trap-nesting requires a considerable amount of attention, but is a valuable aid in developing a flock of poultry along lines of breeding for egg production.

A trap-nest is a laying nest so arranged that after a hen enters it she is confined until released by the attendant. One trap-nest should be provided for each four hens kept in flocks of 50 or more, while more trap-nests are necessary in smaller flocks. The hens are marked with numbered bands and a record is kept of their egg production. The nests should be visited at least four times daily, and preferably much more often, frequent trips being especially necessary when the hens are laying freely and during hot weather.

The trap-nest may be attached to the underside of the dropping board with the front facing the pen, and arranged so that it can easily be removed, or it may be placed on the walls of the pen. If the nest is placed under the dropping board, the latter will serve as a top for the nest, and the rear of the nest may be of wire to allow good ventilation in warm weather. If the nest is placed on the wall, slats or wire should be inserted from the front of the nest to the wall at a sharp angle to prevent the hens from roosting on the nest.

Of course, it is essential to make the nests as attractive and cozy as possible, and this is accomplished by providing them with plenty of clean litter, as often as a new supply of straw is needed. Furthermore, in particularly objectionable cases it pays to clean all the litter from the floor of

A Good Trap Nest for Hens.
 the house, in order to break the hens of laying promiscuously wherever they desire. By removing the straw and bedding, the floor of the house is not so attractive as a nesting spot for the hens and pullets, and hence they are forced to seek the trap-nests.

BLUE OINTMENT KILLS BUGS
 Equal Parts of Poison and Vaseline Applied to Fowl's Body Is Effective.

Body lice on fowls can be quickly and effectively eliminated by the blue ointment treatment. Get your druggist to mix equal parts of vaseline and blue or mercurial ointment. A piece the size of a pea rubbed on to the skin below the vent will kill both lice and nits. Do it this spring and fall but don't overdo it nor use it on chicks under three months old.

PLAN FOR BETTER CHICKENS
 Fall Is Good Time to Obtain Few Purebred Fowls—Get Hens That Molted Late.

This fall is a good time to buy a few purebred hens if you are planning to go in for better chickens. Select hens that have not molted by the middle of October and you will probably have a group of good layers. Next spring they can be mated with a purebred rooster from a high producing strain and your foundation flock is under way.

STUDY OF MARKET DEMANDS
 Poultry Raiser Should Know What Color of Eggs and Meat Will Bring Best Prices.

Every poultry raiser should make a study of the market demands. A uniform color of eggs and flesh in poultry is desirable. A mixed flock will not produce uniform eggs or meat, and eggs from such a flock are not desirable for hatching.

FURNISH HENS FRESH WATER
 One of Common Causes of Digestive Troubles Among Poultry Flock
 Can Be Prevented.

Unclean drinking water is one of the common causes of digestive troubles in poultry during hot weather and the important point is not so much to save labor as to furnish those birds with a supply of pure fresh water at all times.

 USE OF HOG-CHOLERA SERUM
 Work of County Agent in Alabama
 Community Results in Material Decrease in Losses.
 (Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
 Losses by hog cholera have been materially reduced in Bullock County, Ala., as a result of the work of the county agent in training farmers in various centers throughout the county to use the serum and apparatus developed by the department. Forty-nine cars of hogs, 3,928 head, have been marketed from the county through co-operative work, with an estimated saving of $6,000. In Houston County the department's representatives taught 18 men to vaccinate hogs. Six sets of instruments owned by the De-

Injecting the Serum. than Rotary club were supplied to the demonstrators and a serum-distributing point was established in charge of a reliable veterinarian. More than 9,000 head of hogs were treated. In many cases it was found that sickness, other than cholera, was due to some incidental cause, such as bad peanut meal, and balanced rations were advised. The county agent's work resulted in 32 farmers establishing pastures to keep their hogs off the open range, the land thus pastured being freed of many noxious weeds by the rooting of the animals, and prepared for future cultivation. Forty-four farmers in the county were interested in stump removing, and about 2,000 acres of land was cleared in this movement. About five tons of dynamite was bought for the purpose, largely on the co-operative plan.

BREEDERS FAVOR PUREBREDS
 South Dakota Association Inaugurates
 Campaign to Discard Scrubs
 Now in Use.

"You have the bulls and they are needed, needed badly. Let's get them working for the breed."
 This appeal, made by M. J. Flanagan, president of the South Dakota Shorthorn Breeders' association, has been sent to all Shorthorn breeders in the state, preparatory to putting on a purebred-sire campaign. According to the plan, selling expenses will be kept down to the lowest possible figure.
 "But we will put out a lot of bulls," the letter of notification states, "that will do good and create a demand for better cattle. It is constructive work of the best kind."

In a letter to the United States Department of Agriculture, Mr. Flanagan, who also is president of the South Dakota Federation of Livestock Breeders' associations, states: "With the co-operation of the various departments we shall be able to do a good work in getting purebred bulls in use where scrubs are now used."

PUREBRED RAMS HELP SHEEP
 Lambs at Six Months of Age Outweigh Dams and Yield More Than Twice as Much Wool.

Native ewes bred to purebred rams at the Mississippi coastal plain experiment station resulted in lambs which at the age of six months outweighed their dams and yielded more than twice as much wool. This result of the use of good purebred sires is announced by the United States Department of Agriculture, through the bureau of animal industry, in a report covering the last fiscal year.

GOOD FEED TO FATTEN HORSE
 Linseed or Flaxseed May Be Used to Advantage for Supplementing Animal's Ration.

Linseed or flaxseed is very good feed for supplementing the fattening horse ration. If used with soft feed, it may be boiled to advantage. Otherwise it should be ground and fed in limited quantities up to half a pound after being accustomed to it. Oil-cake meal, which is the by-product without the oil, may be fed up to one pound per day.

PRINCIPAL CAUSES OF ILLS
 Pigs Are Too Often Compelled to Work
 Over and Live Upon Same Soil
 Too Intensely.

Experience teaches us that the most serious diseases of swine are those of an infectious or contagious character, and the parasites that get onto or into the pig. Now most of this is caused primarily by the fact that the pigs are all too often forced to work over and live upon the same soil too intensely, without any intervening renovation of that soil.

New Prices
 on Titan and International Tractors
 Now Lowest Ever Quoted

EFFECTIVE immediately, we make another big reduction in the prices of Titan and International tractors. These reductions wipe out all former advances and place Titan and International tractors at the lowest prices at which they have ever been sold.

International 8-16 $900	Titan 10-20 $900
------------------------------------	-----------------------------

This price is about one-fourth less than the price at which the 8-16 sold prior to March of this year. The new figure is the lowest at which it was ever sold. The new price includes all the necessary equipment—platform, fenders, governor, belt pulley—features which must be paid for extra on some tractors.

This is the lowest price ever quoted on the Titan, considering the equipment now included (formerly sold extra). Up to March of this year the price was $1,200—today it is $900.
 At this figure the Titan 3-plow tractor is the best value in the farm power field.

The International 15-30 has been reduced to $1,750—lower than it has ever been before. The man who needs a 4-plow tractor cannot find a better investment than the 15-30 at this price. (All prices f. o. b. Chicago.)

Considering quality, power, equipment, and the service which follows every machine, Titan and International tractors at these new low prices are unquestionably the best buy in the tractor market.

As these prices have been made regardless of manufacturing costs, we do not guarantee to maintain them.

These prices certainly justify the immediate purchase of a tractor. Put it at the horse-killing work of hot weather plowing, and your fall and winter belt work.

Material of Comets' Tails.
 Exactly what comets' tails are made of is one of the unsolved problems of astronomy, but the theory most generally accepted is that they are formed from particles of the comet itself, forced away by the pressure of sunlight, as they apparently increase in size and activity the nearer the comet gets to the sun.

Better cleaning and more free time

Allow yourself more time for recreation by using a Torrington Electric Vacuum Cleaner.

You are sure a Torrington Cleaner will do a perfect job, because the TORRINGTON SPIRAL BRUSH loosens the dirt and the suction gets it. The brush is surrounded with suction, but revolves independent of the motor. This brush loosens all the lint, while the suction takes up the imbedded bits of dirt and trodden-in grit.

ELECTRIC VACUUM
CLEANER

BIG BRUSH—POWERFUL SUCTION

The brush operates fast or slow, because it is driven by rubber-tired wheels which are turned as the cleaner is moved over the floor. It has no belts to slip or gears to strip.

The Torrington motor is a cool-running, compact power plant, set low to go under furniture.

Its use of electricity is surprisingly small—only about two cents worth a week, in the average home—and reduces cleaning to a few minutes daily.

Think of it—YOUR HOME ENTIRELY SWEEPED—in a few minutes.

You can carry a Torrington upstairs or anywhere, because it is light and compact. You can buy one because of the special easy payment plan.

Polynesians Not Dying Out.

THE DIFFERENCE

"I SAW you coming up the street and standing at the gate with Mr. Honeybug and Mr. Playfair," said Mrs. Jamesworthy. "All three of you were laughing so the whole neighborhood could hear you. I wonder why you do all the laughing with your friends, and do nothing but grumble and scowl at home. I haven't seen you laugh in the house in five years, as you laughed out there with those men."

"There's nothing in this house to laugh at," replied Jamesworthy. "Jim Honeybug is a good story-teller, and he was telling us a bully yarn, and for a brief season we forgot the burdens laid upon us, which are greater than we can bear. If you could tell a story as well as Honeybug does, I'd fill these ancestral halls with silvery laughter, but you never try to say anything amusing, Mrs. Jamesworthy. You do tell stories, but they are of a gloomy and tragic character."

"Last night, when I came home, you told a dramatic story to the effect that you had callers all afternoon, and hadn't a chance to cook anything for me, and so I had to eat canned salmon and soda crackers, and wash them down with water, and I insist that when a husband comes home from his arduous labors in the clanging mart, so empty that his watch chain makes a clanking sound when it flaps against his spine, he should have warm victuals, something he can consume with pleasure and pride. The fact that you had an invasion of callers is a cheap excuse."

"My sainted mother never would have permitted any callers to interfere with her management of the cook-stove. She realized that her old man kept the shebang going, and that he should have the right of way. If any old hens happened to be in the house when grub time approached, my mother would request them, firmly but respectfully, to chase themselves, and if they didn't like it they could lump it. When my father came home from his work, the hay was always in the manger for him, and he never had to wait five minutes for a meal."

"The day before yesterday, when I came staggering home, faint and weary from my herculean efforts to make both ends meet, you told me another story. It was to the effect that you had been downtown sizing up a shipment of new spring hats, just received at the millinery foundry, and you were so interested you forgot the lapse of time, and didn't get home in time to cook anything. But you flashed a winning smile at me, and said it wouldn't take you ten minutes to warm up a can of beans, and there was some cold coffee left from breakfast, and you had plenty of smoked herrings on hand."

"Doubtless I should have burst forth into boisterous laughter over this entertaining anecdote, but somehow it didn't appeal to my sense of humor. I was so busy that day I hadn't time to eat anything at noon, and all the way home I was hoping you would have a porterhouse steak about three inches thick, and a raft of boiled potatoes, and perhaps a slab of mince pie as an epilogue."

"The day before that, when I came home as hollow as a bass drum, and fairly gnashing my teeth with hunger, you related a humorous story to the effect that your club didn't adjourn on time that afternoon, and you didn't get home until late, so I would have to get along with a picked-up supper. If I would be patient a few minutes, you said, to make the story seem more spicy, you would boil an egg for me, and there was cold corn bread in the cupboard."

"Such stories, Mrs. Jamesworthy, may seem highly amusing to an innocent bystander, and I have no doubt they would make a great hit if written up and printed in London Punch, but there is something wrong with my sense of humor, or I am at the wrong end of the stories. Anyhow, I can't gurgie over them as I do over Honeybug's yarns."

COLT NEGLECTED IN SPRING

No One Considers That He Should Be Gradually Changed Over From Dry Winter Ration.

Consider the colt in the springtime! Maybe he is a yearling with a half-formed equine mind full of curiosity and wonderment. Every old horse on the place is off in the fields somewhere at work in daylight. His owner neglects the colt as much as he can and have the youngster live.

The half remembered green fields and pastures of last year become green once more. The colt has vague memories of the taste of green things that mingled on his taste-nerves with the flavor of mother's milk. From between the cracks in the post-and-plank fence that incloses his world he looks upon the springing grass, marvels and hungers. Part of his hunger is plain hunger, part is memory, and most of it is instinct, but it is all very real.

He is a lonely little hideful of instincts and cravings about to start his second year. He is a bewildered orphan of the farm stalls and stables, accustomed to his corn and alfalfa, and with all the troubles of horsedom's life before him. About half the time no one considers that he should be gradually changed over from the dry-winter ration to the soft green summer ration, and when the change comes it comes so quickly that there is not a day's time for that young horse's stomach to get used to it.

For long weeks the plow teams have been getting ready for the change. If they could not sense the spring in the air, in any other way they might know it from the gradually increasing amount of corn that is going in the feed boxes. They are being worked a little more and a little steadier than they were while January's snows still covered the pastures. The colt, though, goes his neglected way until some day after the oats are in and every plow moldboard on the place is like burnished silver, then all at once some one decides it is high time that the colt was on the pasture.

On the pasture he goes. It may be just enough of a pasture to keep life within his hide, but he must get along with an occasional salting on sunny Sunday mornings. The grass may be thin and watery, tasteless compared with that good alfalfa he has been getting all winter long, but if he gets thin and hard-bellied, then that must be the colt's fault and not because he is not getting enough to eat. Is he not on a pasture and is not a pasture supposed to be the very place for colts?

Of course, it stands to reason that the change from the warm stable and the regular corn and alfalfa to the open pasture and the yellow-green, thin, spring grass should be a gradual one. Still, no one is supposed to use a great deal of reason in dealing with a boy, a pup or a colt.

TO ESTABLISH SHEEP FLOCK

Farmers Should Not Hesitate to Pay Good Price for Ewes That Produce Thrifty Lambs.

In establishing a flock of sheep do not hesitate to pay a good price for ewes if they are exactly adapted, and especially for those that, when judiciously mated, are likely to produce lambs that will give the best return for the food which they consume. It is of the utmost importance to make use of rams that possess great individual merit, and strongly inherit the good points by which they are distinguished. Unless a ram has a good masculine head and stands firmly on strong legs he should not be selected, however great his merits may be in other respects. Breeding ewes should be kept in good store condition. Show condition and low condition both must be avoided.

BEST TIME TO TRAIN COLTS

Mistake Not to Halt Foals and Teach Them to Lead During Infancy—Means Less Trouble.

It is a mistake not to halt foals and teach them to lead during infancy, when it can be done with less trouble than at any other time. A few minutes two or three times a week is sufficient, as they should be by no means pulled about so as to make them per spire, as there is then a risk of their taking cold. As well as the halting lessons the youngster should be taught to eat dry food, which he will soon do if it is held to him or if allowed to eat from the manger with his dam.

THE CANNING CORNER.

There is as much of a diversity of opinion in regard to various pickles as there is in regard to mother's mince meat. We all like certain foods that we are used to eating. In the following recipes we will each choose that which seems good to us.

Cucumber Relish.
Take two quarts of chopped cucumbers, two quarts of white onions, chopped. Put in a colander and sprinkle with a quarter of a cupful of salt. Let stand one hour, drain and wash, then drain again. Stir one tablespoonful of turmeric into a cupful of sugar; add to it one quart of vinegar and bring to a boil. Put in the cucumbers and onions and boil up once. Put away in jars well sealed.

Oil Pickles.
Take 100 cucumbers one-half to one inch in diameter, slice without peeling very thin, sprinkle one pint of salt over them and let stand over night with one-half dozen small onions sliced thin. Drain, but do not wash, mix with one-fourth pound each of white mustard seed, black mustard seed, four tablespoonfuls of celery seed and one-third of a pint of olive oil. Stir until well blended and add cold vinegar, good snappy vinegar, to cover. Put in glass jars and seal. Keep in a cool place. Those who like olive oil never tire of this kind of pickle.

Canning Tomatoes Whole.
Take a gallon of water, a cupful of salt and when boiling hot drop in whole firm, ripe tomatoes. Let cook until tender but not mushy, remove with a skimmer or perforated spoon to the jar and fill, packing them well. They make their own juice. Seal carefully and in the winter you may serve whole tomatoes as a vegetable or salad.

Crab Apple Jelly.
Wash and core sufficient apples to weigh four pounds, add two quarts of cold water, boil and cook for twenty minutes. To each pint of liquid add one-half pound of sugar. Put the juice in the kettle and the sugar in the oven to heat, boil the juice for ten minutes, add the sugar, cook three minutes and pour into the tumblers.

ARGUE NEW CONGRESSMEN ARE NOT WORTH EXPENSE.

Minority Finds 25 Additional Representatives Will Cost U. S. $500,000 Per Year.

Washington, July 27.—Twenty-five more members of the House, as proposed by Republican leaders with the reported approval of President Harding, will add at least $500,000 a year to Uncle Sam's payroll at a time when he is trying to economize, according to compilations prepared by members of Congress who have set out to defeat the increase.
The minority on the Census Committee including four Democrats and two Republicans, find that the new increase will entail the following new items: Salary for members, $187,500; clerk hire, $92,000 plus a cost of mileage, franks—telegraph and postage—stationary and additional force for maintenance of quarters, amounting to more than $200,000, or a grand total of nearly $500,000.
"There is no public service," minority members hold, "that can be rendered by 460 members that cannot be rendered just as efficiently, if not more so, by 435 members."

THE REPUBLICAN FREE LIST

Representative Tillman (Dem., Ark.), gave this excellent humorous summary of the Fordney Tariff Free List:
"The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. Fordney), many times a millionaire, we are told, chief godfather of this tariff baby, chief defender of the laboring man, champion-in-chief of the farmer, friend, benefactor, and lord protector par excellence of the downtrodden, has provided a free list in this bill that I shall discuss briefly. By reason of his kindness, there is still something free for Americans besides salvation. Sandwiched and hedged in between devices and subterfuges and pitfalls and jokers and traps is now and then an article on the free list. Some chemicals, and here is one of them: Sulphide of arsenic; also valerianic acid. The consumer is taxed for everything he wears, from the hat on his head to the shoes on his feet, but asafœtida, coculus indicus, annatto, cudbear, gambler, osmium, and kieserite can leap over the tariff wall, higher than the wall that grim old Romulus built around Rome, and kieserite et al., do not have to pay for the privilege of the leap. The poor old American consumer must be taxed for his collar and his coat, his shirt and his socks, but there comes to him galloping through the wide breach Mr. Fordney made through his tariff wall such necessities as civet, musk, arrowroot, bones (crude, steamed, or ground). Many a good woman will complain because of the duty on baby clothes and a shroud for her dead husband, but Mr. Fordney provides that she shall have coir yarn, dividivi, and fish skins (both raw or salted) without any duty. Handkerchiefs are taxed, but lava is free. Neckties are on the dutiable list, but leaches crawl in untaxed. Boys, Mr. Fordney makes you pay two prices for your suspenders; but pulu is not taxed, and so on ad libitum, ad nauseum.

AN APPEAL TO THE SENATE.

(The Boston Transcript Republican)
As it passed the House the Fordney Bill was not as bad as it was at certain stages of the debate. Hides and skins were placed on the free list, as were oil, long staple cotton and asphalt. On the final vote the agricultural bloc was badly split. But at best, even with these changes the Fordney bill is much too bad even to become law by the act of a party that expects to be continued in power. Tariff laws far less unpopular than the Fordney bill have been unpopular enough to cost the party that passed them the control of the Lower House of Congress at the ensuing election.
Under all the circumstances the Republican majority in the Senate cannot do a better thing for the country or a more sagacious thing for their party than bury the House bill in committee for an indefinite time and give the right of way to taxation-revision. Tariff revision can wait; it ought to wait. Tax revision can wait but ought not to wait. The House has failed the people in this matter; their appeal is to the Senate.

A MUCH-NEEDED AMENDMENT.

In Senator Kenyon's proposed amendment to the Constitution giving the President power to veto single items in appropriation bill is provided an effective check upon Congress. As matters stand the President is barred from exercising his judgment and sifting the bad from the good. He must approve or disapprove a bill as it comes to him, in its entirety. Though convinced that many items call for unjustifiable expenditures, in practice he is bound to consider that by recourse to the veto he may delay or defeat necessary legislation and in the name of expediency is obliged to accept the lesser evil for the greater good.
It is a situation by which Congress chronically profits in indulging its habits of extravagancy. To load down a Naval or Army or Sundry Civil Appropriation Bill with projects clearly unsound or questionable running into many millions, is an established trick, because it knows exactly how the President's hands are tied. To take advantage of his embarrassment by making him a party to its wasteful schemes is a regular rule.
The Kenyon amendment would put a stop to that, or at least place responsibility where it properly belongs. It has been demonstrated time and again that where the Governor of New York, acting within his legal powers, diligently scans appropriation bills and kills separate items as they deserve, he saves to the taxpayers of the State many millions of dollars. The knowledge that he has power serves indirectly as a curb upon the Legislature. To withhold from the President of the United States similar veto powers is an offense against right business policy.

HANDY DUST BOX FOR FOWLS

Confined Hens Should Be Given Opportunity for Bathing—It Discourages Vermin.

When the flock is confined in laying houses the hens miss the opportunity afforded when they are on-range to pick out a likely spot and take a dust bath. It is just as important to a hen's well-being that she be able to take a dust bath when cooped up as well as when on range. Besides, it provides her with the sort of ammunition which nature intended she should use in combating vermin and natural parasites. Hens that have ample facilities for dust baths will not be "carried off" by lice.

FEEDING PIGEONS IN WINTER

Failure to Provide Proper Kind and Quantity of Grain in Winter Causes Falling Off.

Neglect in feeding the right kind and amount of grain to pigeons in cold weather is often the cause of the marked falling off in the production of squabs in winter. More time and effort is required to feed and manage pigeons at this time of the year, but the owner is well paid for the extra work.

DEFECTIVE TREES FOR FUEL

Specimens Not Suitable for Good Timber Should Be Removed and Used to Cut Fuel Bill.

It is just as possible to remove weed trees from the wood lot as it is to weed the garden; besides, the wood from the crooked, defective trees, and those that are not good timber species will make good fuel.

PEOPLE OF OUR TOWN

We all looked like this once, but Blamed Few of us Will Admit It. A Baby is Just Grand until he gets This Way, whereat Friend Father wonders aloud How Far it is to the Orphan Asylum. And then he Will go Down Town and Pester his Friends to Death, Bragging about what a Bright Child he's the Father of Which.

Forceful Evidence.

A lawyer was once, at short notice, called upon to defend a horse thief. He did not know that the thief had pleaded guilty and made an impassioned speech in the man's defense. He believed he had made an impression and the man would be acquitted. But the judge's summing up disillusioned him. "Gentlemen," said the judge, "you have heard his counsel. Only, remember this—the prisoner was there when the horse was stolen and the learned counsel was not."

CAN RID SHEEP OF INSECTS

Irritation Causes Animals to Pull Their Wool and Thus Injure Fleece—Use Any Dip.

Dipping is the only practical way to rid sheep of ticks and lice, say experienced sheep men, who further point out that lice cause sheep to pull their wool and thus injure the fleece.

Bad as ticks are, lice are said to be even more dreaded. Sometimes it is even difficult to find them. If a sheep has pulled its wool badly, however, and the farmer looks closely at the skin over the spots where the wool is most disturbed, he will likely find small black specks which at first he may take for timothy seeds or chaff. As he watches them closely, however, he will see that they move.

After the sheep has been shorn it should be dipped. The lambs also, as A Flock of Purebred Sheep.

Soon as they are of any size, may be given the same treatment. In order that the sheep may go into winter quarters in good condition and free from ticks, it is well to dip again in the fall.

Any of the well-known dips are satisfactory, say the sheep men at the New York state college of agriculture, but whatever one is selected it is important to follow directions closely, they point out. Dips are of two kinds, the powder dips and the so-called coal-tar dips.

TUBERCULOSIS CASES FOUND

Cattle on Indiana Farm Discovered With Disease in Advanced Stage—All Purebreds.

Following the tuberculin testing of 37 cattle on an Indiana farm, 14 animals which reacted to the test, when slaughtered in an establishment under federal supervision, showed lesions of the disease not only on the organs, but even in some of the meat. In reporting the incident to the United States Department of Agriculture, Inspector R. R. Newman explained that the demonstration was of unusual interest because all the cattle were purebred.

One of the cows, which had supplied milk for local use, showed extensive lesions of tuberculosis in the mammary glands, a condition associated with probable infection of the milk. Several stock raisers, who saw the tuberculous carcass, have signified their desire to have their herds qualify for a place on the accredited-herd list. Herds on this list are officially recognized as free from tuberculosis.

EQUIPMENT TO BREED SWINE

Up-to-Date Devices Save Time and Labor and Add Much Pleasure to Management of Hogs.

It is not true that one needs the most expensive equipment to breed swine successfully, but an up-to-date equipment saves labor and adds much to the pleasure of business. Where possible, all buildings should be so constructed that they can be easily cleaned and disinfected. Concrete makes possibly the best floors and feeding yards.

START FLOCK OF SHEEP NOW

Best Time to Begin With Animals Is When Prices for Breeding Ewes Is at Low Mark.

The best time for the farmer to begin raising sheep is when the price is low, as it is at the present time. In addition to the reasonable figure at which breeding ewes can be secured, the fact that there is plenty of hay and other roughage and short grain and much waste in the stubble due to rust, makes this a fine year for the farmer to get started with a small farm flock.

HEAVY BEDDING IS FAVORED

Tends to Cleanliness and Comfort of Animals and Saves Much of Fertilizing Elements.

There are several good reasons for bedding stock heavily in the winter. The comfort of the animals and the cleanliness; the saving of valuable fertilizing elements; and protection of the feet from the troubles resulting from either wet manure under foot or the hard concrete floors where this material is used.

Buick Delivered 13,759 Autos to Owners In June

Figures that reflect the strength and potentiality of the United States and one of the greatest industries were released for publication today by the Buick Motor Company. They show that during the month of June past, 13,759 Buick Six's were delivered into the hands of owners all were cars ranging in price from $1495 to $26335 F. O. B. Flint.

"Some one has said that the automobile industry was through with big figures but these totals prove the contrary" said E. T. Strong General Sales Manager who made the announcement. The fact that nearly 14000 Buick Cars were placed in the hands of owners in June should not be regarded as astounding or phenomenal.

Instead the figures can be interpreted as a concrete demonstration of the tendency of the people to invest in a product which they want and actually need.

Find Gold In Trees.

There is gold in trees. Tests have been made by taking the wood of certain trees, burning to ashes and assaying the ashes. It has been found that the ashes of almost all trees showed traces of gold. The harder the wood, the more gold there was. Ashes of the black iron wood contained from four to ten shillings' worth of gold per ton. The metal tends to collect in the trunk near the roots, and the quantity naturally depends upon the auriferous nature of the soil in which the trees grow.—Toronto Telegram.

BONUS BILL KILLED FOREVER

Washington, D. C., July 27—Just as the public was settled in its seat watching the comedy of making a tariff bill in the House of Representatives for the promotion of profiteering among the privileged classes, its attention was temporarily distracted by the spectacular tragedy of killing the Soldiers' Bonus Bill in the House of its alleged friends.

The reading public already knows the story of how that bill was killed; of how President Harding, following a custom of President Wilson, went before the Senate and brought about the recommitment of the bill to the Finance Committee, where, in the opinion of the wisest legislative observers in both parties, it is buried beyond hope of resurrection by this Congress.

This is the first time in history that a President of the United States has appeared before either House of Congress to block legislation. President Wilson frequently appeared there, but, as Chairman George White of the Democratic National Committee said in a recent statement always to urge or expedite the passage of needed legislation.

Neither the Republican Senators nor the Republican press criticised President Harding for "dictating to Congress," the form of criticism here before directed at President Wilson.

The effect of President Harding's "dictation" is shown by the votes of Republican Senators, first to take up and consider the bill's passage and then to recommit it to the private graveyard of Senator Penrose's Finance Committee. On the motion to take up and consider the bill every Republican Senator who voted, voted "Aye," except Senator Warren. On the vote to recommit, and thus kill the bill the following twenty-four Republican Senators changed front and voted to recommit, following President Harding's speech.

Ball, Brandegee, Cameron, Cummins, Curtis, Dillingham, Edge, Gooding, Hale, Kellogg, Kenyon, Knox, Lodge, McKinley, McNary, Moses, Nelson, New, Nicholson, Odie, Poindexter, Smoot, Sterling, and Watson.

Chapter XIII

Dawes went away, and before we broke off to go to dinner at the railroad club, I was given a memorandum order for a special.

At the club I found that Mr. Norcross had an invited guest—Major Kendrick. For a week or two Mrs. Sheila had been visiting at the state capital, and the major's wife and Mafie Ann were with her. So the good old major was sort of unattached, and glad enough, I took it, to be a guest at anybody's table.

For a while the table talk—in which, of course, Jimmie Dods hadn't any part whatever—circled around the late landslide election, and what Governor Burrell's party would do, now that it had the say-so. But by and by it got around to the railroad situation.

"You're putting up a mighty good fight, Graham, my son, but it isn't over yet—not by a jugful, sub"—this isn't just the way the major said it, but it's as near as I can come to his soft Southern drawl with the smothered "r's." "I've known Misteh Rufus Hatch for a good many years, and he has the perseverance of the very devil. With all that has been done, you must never forget, for a single hour, that your admirable reform strutchuh stands, as yet, upon the life of a single man. Don't lose sight of that, Graham."

The boss looked up kind of curiously.

"You and Sheila seem to think that point needs emphasizing more than any other," he commented.

The major's fine old eyes twinkled gravely.

"You are mighty safe in payin' strict attention to whatever the little geytel tells you, Graham, my boy," he asserted. "She has a way of gettin' at the heart of things that puts us meah men to shame—she has, for a fact, sub."

"She has been very helpful to me," the boss put in, with his eyes in his plate. "In fact, I may say that she has herself suggested a good many of the moves in the railroad game. It's marvelous, and I can't understand how she can do it."

They went on for a while, singing Mrs. Sheila's praises over in a good many different ways, and I thought, wherever she might happen to be just then, her pretty little ears ought to be burning good and hard. To hear them talk you would have thought she was another Portia-person, and then some.

The dinner wore itself out after a while, and when the waiter brought the cigars, the boss was looking at his watch.

"I'm sorry I can't stay and smoke with you, major," he said, pushing his chair back. "But the business grind never lets up. I'm obliged to go to Strathcona tonight."

"I don't know what the major was going to say to this abrupt break-away: the after-dinner social cigar was a sort of religious ceremony with him. But whatever he was going to say, he didn't say it, for at that moment a telegraph boy came in and handed him a message. He put on his other glasses and read the telegram, with his big goatee looking more than ever like a dagger and the fierce white mustaches twitching. At the end of things he folded the message and put it into his pocket, saying, sort of soberly:

"Graham, there are times when Sheila's intuhferences are mighty

"Sheila's intuhferences are mighty neah uncanny."

neah uncanny; they are, for a fact, sub. This wire is from her. What do you suppose it says?"

Of course, the boss said he couldn't suppose anything about it, and the major went on.

"She tells me, in just seven words, not to let you go to Strathcona tonight. Now what do you make of that? How on top of God's green earth did she know, away off yonder at the capital, that you were meaning to go to Strathcona tonight?"

Mr. Norcross shook his head. Then he said: "There are wires—both kinds—though I don't know why anybody should telegraph or telephone the capital that I expect to attend a mine-owners' meeting tomorrow morning in the big gold camp. That's why I'm going, you know."

"But this warning," the major insisted. "There's a reason for it, Graham, as sure as you are bawp!"

Again the boss shook his head.

"Between you two, you and Sheila, I'm due to acquire a case of nerves. I don't know what she has heard, but I can't afford to dodge a business appointment. Sheila has merely overheard an echo of the threats that are constantly being made by the Hatch sympathizers. It's the aftermath of the election, but it's all talk. They're down and out, and they haven't the nerve to strike back, now."

That ended matters at the club, and the boss and I walked down to the headquarters. The special, with Buck Chandler, was waiting, and at the last minute I thought I wasn't going to get to go.

"There's no need of your putting in a night on the road, Jimmie," said the boss, with the kindly thought for other people's comfort that never failed him. But after I had begged a little, telling him that he'd need somebody to take notes in the mine meeting, he said, "All right," and we got aboard and gave the word to Maclise, the conductor, to get his clearance and go.

A few minutes later we pulled out and the night run was begun. Like every other car the boss had ever owned, the "05" was fitted up as a working office, and since he had me along, he opened up a lot of claim papers upon which the legal department was giving him the final say-so, and we went to work.

For the next two hours I was so busy that I didn't know when we passed the various stations. At half-past nine, Mr. Norcross snapped a rubber band over the last of the claim files, lighted a pipe, and told me I might go to bed if I wanted to; said that he was going himself after he'd had a smoke. Just then, Chandler whistled for a station, and, looking out of a window, I saw that we were pulling into Bauxite, the little wind-blown junction from which the Strathcona branch led away into the northern mountains.

Wanting a bite of fresh air before turning in, I got off when we made the stop and strolled up to the engine. Maclise was in the office, getting orders for the branch, and Chandler was squatting in the gangway of the 815 and waiting. Up ahead of us, and too far away for me to read the number on her tender, there was a light engine. I thought at first it was the pusher which was kept at Bauxite to help heavy freights up the branch grades, and I wondered what it was doing out on the branch "Y" and in our way.

"What's the pusher out for, Buck?" I asked.

Chandler glanced down at me. "You ain't so much of a railroad man as you might be, Jimmie," he said. "That ain't the pusher. It's our first section, runnin' light to Strathcona."

Maybe Chandler was right, that I wasn't much of a railroad man, but I savvy'd the Short Line operating rules well enough to know that it wasn't usual to run a light engine, deadheading over the road, as a section of a special. Also, I knew that Buck knew it.

With that last little talk over the club dinner-table fresh in mind, I began to wonder, but instead of asking Chandler any more questions about the engine out ahead, I asked him if I might ride a piece with him up the branch; and when he said "Sure," I climbed up and humped myself on the fireman's box.

Maclise got his orders in due time and we pulled out. I noticed that when he gave Chandler the word, he also made motions with his lantern to the engine up ahead and it promptly stemmed away, speeding up until it had about a half-mile lead and then holding it. That seemed funny, too. Though it is a rule that is often broken on all railroads, the different sections of a train are supposed to keep at least five minutes apart, and our "first" wasn't much more than a minute away from us at any time.

Another thing that struck me as being funny was the way Chandler was running. It was only sixty mountain miles up the branch to the big gold camp, and we ought to have been able to make it by one o'clock, taking it dead easy. But the way Buck was jiggling along it looked as if it might be going to take us all night.

Just the same, nothing happened. The first ten miles was across a desert stretch with only a slightly rising grade, and it was pretty much all rancent—straight line. Beyond the ten-mile station of Nippo we hit the mountain proper, climbing it through a dry canyon, with curves that blocked off everything fifty feet ahead of the engine, and grades that would have made pretty good toboggan slides. The night was fine and starlit, but there was no moon and the canyon shadows loomed like huge walls to shut us in.

On the reverse curves I could occasionally get a glimpse of the red tail lights of the engine which ought, by rights, to have been five full minutes ahead of us. It was still holding its short lead, jogging along as leisurely as we were.

With nothing to do and not much to see, I got sleepy after a while, and about the time when I was thinking that I might as well climb back over the tender and turn in, I dozed off right there on the fireman's box—which was safe enough, at the snail's pace we were running. When I awoke it was nearly one o'clock in the morning, and we had worried through the thirty-miles of canyon run and were climbing the steep talus of Slide mountain.

While I was rubbing my eyes, the eight-wheeler gave another little jerk, and I saw that Chandler was slowing for a stop; saw this and got a glimpse of somebody on the track ahead, flagging us down with a lantern.

A minute later the brakes had been set and Buck and I were off. As we swung down from the engine step, Maclise joined us, and we went to meet the man with the lantern. He was the fireman of the engine ahead, and when we got around on the track I saw that our "first section" was stopped just a little way farther on.

"What is it, Barty?" said Maclise, when we came up to the fireman.

"It's them h—l-fired wreckers again," was the gritting reply. "Rail joint disconnected and sprung out so's to let us off down the mountain."

I thought it was up to me to go back and tell the boss, but there wasn't any need of it. The stop or the slow running or something had roused him, and he was up and dressed and coming along beside the engine. When he came up, Maclise told him why we were stopping. He didn't say anything about the rail break, but he did ask, sort of sharp and quick, what engine that was up ahead.

We Went to Meet the Man With the Lantern.

I don't know what Maclise told him. Chandler turned to go back to his engine, and the rest of us were moving along the other way, the boss setting the pace with Maclise at his elbow. Three rail-lengths ahead of the stopped light engine we came to the break. The head engineer and another man were down on their hands and knees examining it, and when they stood up at our coming, I saw that the other man was Mr. Van Britt.

"What?" said the boss; "you here?" Our only millionaire nodded. "I ride the line once in a while—just to see how things are going," he returned crisply.

The boss didn't say anything more, but he knelt to look at the break. It was a trap, all right, set, beyond all question of doubt, to catch the private-car special. The fish-plates had been removed from a joint in the left-hand

Mine Foreman Says The Result He Got From Tanlac Is Worth More Than A Fortune.

"My health has improved so much since I began taking Tanlac that I feel like I have been almost made into a new man," said George A. Bound, 219 East Shawnee Ave., Plymouth, Penn., well-known foreman at the Kingston Coal Mining Co., Gaylord Colliery.

"For five years I suffered so from stomach trouble, nervousness, headaches and constipation that I was almost unfit for anything. I had to live on milk and bread for six months and even then the gas bloating and nausea were so terrible in my stomach I could hardly stand it. The pains were so severe in my stomach for a week at a time I could not sleep at night and there was such a pressure in my chest it nearly cut off my breath. I was intensely nervous, had headaches and was always taking something for constipation. Mornings I was so tired it was all I could do to get to the mines. My appetite was very poor, I lost twenty-five pounds in weight and became so thin and sallow my friends were all alarmed. I tried everything I could hear tell of, but nothing did any good and I got to where I was willing to do anything to get relief.

"Tanalac saved the day for me and now I am absolutely well. My appetite is fine, I eat anything I want and never suffer the least bit afterwards. My nerves are as steady as a clock. I sleep like a log, but get up ready for a hard day's work, have regained fifteen pounds of my lost weight and feel as fine as a fiddle. I wouldn't take any amount of money for the good Tanlac has done me."

HOW CLOSE WE CAME TO WAR IN 1916, IS TOLD BY DANIELS

Cabinet feared war in April, 1916 Navy was ready and under mobilization orders—Details of preparations for hostilities a year before war came and now told for the first time—President's Sussex note was ultimatum—Had Germany declined to abandon ruthless policy president was determined to sever relations—Daniels confident in crisis because of early plans made to have fleet ready for any emergency—Promises story about mysterious Mr. Davidson.

By Josephus Daniels
Former Secretary of the Navy

ARTICLE 4

The navy prepared for action in April 1916, for war seemed almost as imminent then as it did the next year. When President Wilson sent his Sussex note to Germany, declaring that relations would be broken if ruthless submarine warfare was not stopped, we made all plans to mobilize the fleet. Nothing could show more clearly the critical situation than the steps the navy took to meet it.

My mobilization order of April 27, 1916, shows that twenty-nine of thirty-two battleships were ready for immediate action, and that one of the remaining three would be ready in three weeks' time.

The corresponding table for the destroyer force showed that out of forty-nine destroyers, forty-two were immediately available and that three of the remaining seven would be available within thirty days.

The sinking of the Sussex was the biggest jolt which had come to the peaceful hopes of Washington since the sinking of the Lusitania. It so plainly disregarded the American position as defined in the president's Lusitania note that it could not be ignored. Either Germany must repudiate the Sussex incident as typical of a policy, or continued relations would be impossible.

It was about this time, I think, although I do not recall the exact date, when the president, after dwelling upon the extreme gravity of the situation, said to us solemnly: "I hope that those of us who believe in prayer, will ask divine guidance."

Those who know him best (and most people know his reticence about his personal beliefs) will appreciate how deep was his anxiety when he spoke thus to his official family.

Wilson Reads Ultimatum

The Sussex was torpedoed on March 24. When all the facts were in the possession of the state department, and no satisfactory explanation had come from Berlin, the president called us together to read the ultimatum which he had prepared to serve upon Germany.

Let me recall the significant words in that ultimatum. They have been forgotten in the overwhelming, subsequent events, but they were words which would have carried us at that date into war as surely as did the diplomatic rupture of 1917, had not Germany seen well to withdraw temporarily from her utterly intolerable and unpermissible position.

Here are the president's plain words:

It is still the purpose of the imperial government to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels of commerce by the use of submarines, without regard to what the government of the United States must consider the sacred and indisputable rules of international law and the universally recognized dictates of humanity, the government of the United States is at last forced to the conclusion that there is but one course to pursue. Unless the imperial government should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare against passengers and freight-carrying vessels, the government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German empire altogether.

Rest Hopes on U-Boat

When we listened to the reading of these words and realized what they meant and the tremendous possibilities they implied, everyone of us was profoundly moved and there were some, of optimistic temperament, who hoped that this firm threat of American action would result in a complete abandonment of Germany's warfare on merchant shipping, but there were others who held no such hope. The latter were convinced that Germany relied too greatly upon her U-boat weapon to allow it to be restricted in striking power for any great length of time.

The end of the submarine as the decisive weapon Germany regarded at that time I shall narrate later. Some temporary concession she might make, but when separate need or tempting opportunity appealed to her, there seemed no reason to doubt that Von Tirpitz would forget all pledges and undertakings and strike wherever he could do most damage.

There were those, indeed, who doubted if Germany would make even a temporary concession, and I think all felt that the possibility of war brooded over us with darkening shadows when we left the white house with the knowledge that America's ultimatum was on its way to Berlin.

Order for Mobilization

My own apprehensions that relations might be broken off induced me to take immediate steps to have the fleet in readiness. The navy department made complete plans for mobilization, and on April 27 I approved the order, and it was forthwith sent to every ship. It was accompanied by the mobilization sheets, showing when each battleship and destroyer would be available for service. The test of the mobilization order follows:

NAVY DEPARTMENT
WASHINGTON, April 27, 1916
CONFIDENTIAL.

From: Chief of Naval Operations.

TO:

Subject: Mobilization plan

1. The following order has this day been approved by the secretary of the navy:

"1. In case of mobilization for war in the Atlantic the organization of the naval forces will be as indicated in the mobilization sheets published from time to time by the department.

"2. Plans will be developed by all the officers concerned for execution upon the receipt of the order to mobilize.

"3. The order to mobilize when received will be construed as an order to take all necessary action for the rapid assembly of ships at the rendezvous in all respects ready for war service.

"4. The rendezvous is designated as Chesapeake bay. 2. Copies of mobilization sheets are forwarded herewith.

Ready for Emergency

This, as the order itself indicates was a strictly confidential communication. Congress alone has power to declare war, and no war order may be issued until it has given authority. But when war threatens it is the navy's duty to get ready for emergency. As the first line of defense it must not be caught napping. Mobilization is the next step to actual hostilities, and is justifiable only when conditions are extremely threatening. That was the case in the spring of 1916.

As it happened, Germany yielded. She replied to our ultimatum with a declaration that her government was "prepared to do its utmost to confine the operations of war for the rest of its duration to the fighting forces of the belligerents." She further promised that merchant vessels should no longer be sunk without warning or without saving human lives, except in cases where they attempt to escape or to offer resistance.

Note the phrase "for the rest of its duration." This made the pledge binding until the war ended. Within eight months Germany was laying her plans to shatter this solemn promise, and within nine she had repudiated it. For the time, however, it averted the rupture between the two countries, and postponed for nearly a year what many of us by now had come to regard as inevitable.

War Staved Off for Year

But this I want to emphasize—if Germany had declined to abandon the sort of warfare the Sussex sinking represented, President Wilson would have sent Bernstorff home in the spring of 1916 and we would have been at war, in all human probability, before midsummer. We were set for this programme when Berlin backed down.

Early in 1915 I asked the general board to make a study and submit recommendations concerning "the preparation necessary to be made by the bureau and officers of the department to insure a state of preparedness for war."

On March 13, 1915, the board, then headed by Admiral Dewey, furnished the desired plans.

I sent them to each bureau chief with instructions to comply with their requirements.

War plans had been made already and corrected up-to-date, for the fleet.

In July of 1915, I invited Mr. Edison and twenty other eminent engineers, scientists and inventors to devote their genius to naval efficiency. I urged them to attempt to discover some effective means for combating submarines.

On Oct. 7, I directed the general board to prepare a five-year building programme for the navy, on an estimate of $100,000,000 each year for new construction. About the same time Admiral Blue, with my approval made plans to increase the number of enlisted men from 54,000 to practically 100,000.

For two years before war did come we worked to get the whole navy ready, and when the mysterious S. W. Davidson sailed for London in March, 1917, I knew from Admiral Mayo, commander-in-chief, that the fleet was in such good condition that only a word would be required to mobilize it for war.

Swamptown.—John Slepah, aged 45, of this place, was killed when caught under a fall of rock in the Jeddo No. 4 mines of the Jeddo-Highland Coal company.

Mt. Carmel.—Diving into Righter's dam, near here, John Valeski, 10, split open his head on the bottom and was rescued in an unconscious condition by comrades.

Lewistown.—Thrown twenty feet in the air by a premature dynamite blast in a quarry here, Clarence Yeater, 30, was seriously injured, but will recover.

Danville.—Frank Berton, lineman for a telephone company, was permanently blinded by the explosion of a bucket of lime he was using in his work.

Pittsburgh.—Carnegie Institute of Technology is offering 200 scholarships to graduates of Pittsburgh high and elementary schools, each worth $100 a year for four years.

Pottsville.—Mrs. Augusta Picenta, a widow conducting a hotel opposite the courthouse, was robbed of $575 she had saved to erect a tombstone to her husband. Joseph Dislava, an old friend of the family, was arrested for the theft and gave $300 of the money back. The cash was stolen while Mrs. Picenta was attending a funeral out of town.

Connellsville.—Claiming she sustained serious injuries when struck by an automobile as she was alighting from a West Penn street car at Lelsering, Mrs. Marian Mercer, of Trotter, has instituted a $10,000 damage suit against S. D. and G. E. Sherrick, of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Hannah Burton, of Phillips, has sued Frank Hollywood, of Collier, for $5000 for the death of her daughter, Nora, on July 23. Hollywood, driving an automobile, is alleged to have run down the girl, who was riding a motorcycle.

Connellsville.—Police protection was asked by Mrs. William Darby, of 806 West Crawford avenue, for her 3-year-old daughter, Frieda, against the attacks of a rat, the largest ever seen in this section. The rat attacked persons who attempted to kill it.

Chester.—John Wiley, of Crum Lynne, was sent by his employer, John O'Brien, to make repairs a water pipe in Glenolden, and was in a trench eight feet deep when the sides collapsed and hurled him under earth and rock. One hand above the surface was seen by passersby, who quickly responded and dug him out. Wiley was gasping for breath when rescued, but soon recovered.

Gettysburg.—The building on the Lincoln Highway immediately west of Gettysburg on Seminary Ridge, known as General Lee's headquarters, has been purchased by Clyde F. Daley, a local merchant, and will be converted into a war museum. The building is one of the most interesting, historically, about Gettysburg.

Uniontown.—Convicted of sending threatening letters to mine officials at Colonial, Daniel Sheroko was fined $300 and sentenced to six months to the Fayette county jail. Upon payment of the costs the term will be reduced one-half, the court stated.

Washington.—An effort is being made by county authorities and state policemen to find slayers of Dominick Salva, whose lifeless body was found in a wooded tract on the outskirts of Avella. Salva, who was well known in the community, had six bullet wounds in his head and eight near the heart. An empty shotgun and a revolver were found near the body.

Uniontown.—Burglars who attempt to "stick up" any of the Uniontown banks will find themselves facing a much unexpected barrage of gunfire. Following bank robberies in virtually every section of the country, local bank officials have organized "firing" squads, the members of which have been taking rifle and revolver practice, and who have become proficient in the use of firearms. The women clerks are being taught the art, also, and a warm reception is awaiting intruders with evil intentions. Burglar crills have been inaugurated in the different local banks so in case any member of the force is held up the others will carry out a stated program.

Hazleton.—Members of the Blueberry Packers' Association announced that ten solid carloads of huckleberries have been shipped to market thus far this season, as compared to thirty on the same date in 1920, and thirty-eight on July 18, 1919. These figures were given out to show how poor the crop is this year, due to frosts, forest fires and drought.

White Haven.—A survey of this place disclosed that about half the residents are engaged in the poultry business.

Connellsville.—In the last two weeks more than 18,000 tons of coal have been shipped from this region to Holland.

Altoona.—A case of infantile paralysis here was reported to local and state health authorities, the victim being a 2-year-old boy.

York.—Choice of red as the color for the top of a tent in which they camped at Sprinkle's Mill was unfortunate for E. C. Tyson, Lester Tyson and John Platts, of this city. The color proved objectionable to a bull in a nearby meadow and he charged the tent, ripping it to pieces and scattering the entire camp outfit.

Harrisburg.—A $500,000 bond issue may be floated by the Dauphin county commissioners to build two new bridges next fall. It is planned to construct one over the Swatara creek west of Hummelstown. The other proposed bridge is an intercounty structure over the Juniata river at Clarke's Ferry.

Harrisburg.—Results of an analysis made by Dr. C. L. Alsberg, chief federal chemist in Washington, D. C., disclosed that botulism poisoning caused the death of three persons several days ago in Greensburg after eating ripe olives at a dinner given at a birthday celebration in the home of Joseph D. Wentling. Dr. R. C. Rosenberg, of Jefferson Medical College, made another analysis of samples of the olives, but found no botulinus germs. He did find other poisonous germs in the olives, however, and two guinea pigs fed with them died, one six hours after eating the olives. The sale of the olives, which were purchased in Pittsburgh was discontinued.

Greensburg.—Daniel Pearson, of Latrobe, had about the closest shave of his life during a thunder storm—even if he didn't get all his beard removed. While Pearson was standing before a mirror a bolt of lightning struck the chimney of his house, and the razor was dashed from his hand. Pearson was dazed for some minutes. Mrs. Pearson, who was just entering the house at the time, was severely shocked.

Pittsburgh.—Three police sergeants, reporting at the Frankstown avenue station, were suspended following the discovery that $1212.25 had disappeared from a tin box in the station. Of the missing money $1000 was said to represent a forfeit put up by a resident accused of illegal liquor practices.

Scranton.—The war department has taken from the slack list for Division No. 1, Scranton, the name of Blazie Baruski, it being found that he served in the army under another name.

Weatherly.—Town council is in a quandary concerning the dimensions of its public square, given the community three generations ago by the Asa Packard family. No maps or descriptions of the land can be found now that the outlines are to be marked by the borough.

Harrisburg.—Unusually protracted hot weather has served one good purpose according to state agricultural officials, who say it has kept down insect pests to a great extent and also made it easier to get rid of weeds.

Altoona.—William E. Doyle, aged 35, of Gaysport, a lineman, was almost instantly killed at Water street, near here, when he drove his motorcycle on the rocks at the side of the road to avoid colliding with an automobile. His wife and daughter, in the side car, were injured but not seriously.

McAdoo.—Chief of Police Sikorski ended a two years' search for John Pokelenda when he caused his arrest at Lansford, charged with eloping with Mrs. Mary Shimko. Pokelenda is said to have gone to Europe with the woman, but returned recently to this country. He was held under $1000 bail for court.

Hazleton Heights.—Run over by a ice cream wagon, 2-year-old Martha Skulski was killed near here.

Gettysburg.—A community movement has been launched to build a lake for boating and bathing one mile west of here.

Hazleton.—This city has landed its sixty-sixth factory a hair pin plant, which will be run by George Gasper and Michael Washko.

Shamokin.—Joseph Andrewlitch, who was burned in a gas explosion at the Pennsylvania Colliery a week ago, died at the State Hospital here.

Webster.—Six men were overcome by smoke and gas when fire broke out in the Gallatin mine of the Pittsburgh Coal company, near here.

York.—Property valued at $110,500, will be purchased by the York school board, to be used as a site for an annex to the high school building.

Somerfield.—Caught under their car when it overturned on the slippery road near here, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Alexander, of Pittsburgh, were injured and their 4-months-old baby, Bernice, was so badly hurt that it died a short time later in the Uniontown Hospital.

Harrisburg.—Unaware of a box on the Copenmuth, Mrs. Mabel Rhoades, 23 years old, of this place, stepped from a rock and was drowned.

Elizabethtown.—William Detrich, of this place, fell twenty-five feet while picking pears and was seriously injured.

Greensburg.—Clay F. Lynch was elected president of the newly organized Union Trust company here.

Minney.—A series of rulings establishing a parole system at the Industrial Home for Women here, were made by Deputy Attorney General Collins.

KING MOTOR COMPANY

MANN'S CHOICE Route 1

The farmers are busily engaged in harvesting their hay and oats. The hay is a small crop, but the oats is fairly good.

John R. Keller, of Pittsburgh, and Rudolph Keller, of Bedford, were recent guests of their cousins, W. H. Keller and sisters.

Mrs. W. H. Dull and son, Clarence, Miss Josephine Keller, and Mrs. George Kelley and little son, John William, spent Tuesday in Bedford.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Hyde and a girl to Mr. and Mrs. Warren Turner one day last week.

Mrs. W. H. Dull is seriously ill at this writing.

Mrs. Earl Snively, of Schellsburg, spent a few days last week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Diehl.

Communion services was held at Trinity church, Dry Ridge, on July 17. Twenty-four new members were added—twenty-one by Confirmation, and three by letter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Benning and son, Clay, of West End, were guests of their cousins, W. H. Keller and sisters, and Mr. and Mrs. George Kelley.

W. H. Keller and sister, Effie, Mrs. George Kelley and little son, John William, made a business trip to Bedford Friday afternoon.

WOODBURY

Mr. and Mrs. Garner of Roaring Spring were on a visit to friends at Woodbury a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pressel and sons were in Altoona on Thursday taking in the Lutheran reunion on their return home.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Berkhelmer motored to Altoona and the Lutheran reunion on Thursday, accompanied by Miss Catharine Bolger, Messrs. Frank and Harry Henry and Rev. C. F. Gephart.

Since the Hoffman Ice Cream company has moved from their old stand into the splendid new building in Altoona, William Henry a former Woodbury boy, has been placed by the company into a responsible position as a foreman.

Mr. and Mrs. Groff of Elizabethtown are visitors at the home of her mother Mrs. Reinhard Stayer.

Since the newly constructed overhead bridge and drive way across the branch railroad at McKees is constructed although not fully opened for auto traffic as yet, the Morrison Cove people look upon the improvement as making the drive to and from more safe and convenient than the old dangerous crossing across the tracks. This will, no doubt, be more satisfactory to the traveling public as well as a safe guard on the part of the railroad company.

D. B. Byers and family of Woodbury, Mrs. Frank Bolger and daughter, Hazel, Herbert Hoover, Mary Henry, Mrs. George Ebersole and son John, with others took in the pleasures of the splendid music given by the Loyalville Orphans' Home band and the able addresses at the Lakemont park on Thursday.

Quite a number attended the Reformed reunion on Friday and others will attend the Methodist next week. Squire Krichbaum was a business visitor to the county capitol at Bedford, regarding some important estate matters at hand.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Fluke attended the Reformed church services at Loyalburg last Sunday morning. While Mr. Fluke stopped his car by the side of the church waiting for Mrs. Fluke to get in a roadster came along and tipped the front end of the Fluke car, throwing Mrs. Fluke out of the machine and jolting Mr. Fluke against the steering wheel. Their car was damaged in the front. Earl Stonerook is improving his home by repairs and painting.

Decidedly in Favor of It.

"I dunno what dis relativity is," said Uncle Eben; "but if it's what keeps dis earth from rollin' around loose in space an' bumpin' into smethin', I'm strictly in favor of it."

The Right Investment

The papers tell a story of a farmer who desired a loan to buy a hay loader. It was learned he had only six acres of hay land and he was persuaded to borrow the money for a good dairy cow instead. He thus laid the foundation for a prosperous business instead of using his borrowed money to buy something he couldn't afford to own and which only added to his overhead expenses.
